Facilities

Most English Department classes and events are held in EPB, the English and Philosophy Building, which includes the Literary Loft, which serves as a gathering place for undergraduate students. Nonfiction Writing classes generally take place in the new Nonfiction Writing House, which includes two purpose-built seminar rooms and a library/meeting space in a landscaped setting.

The University of Iowa Libraries collection is strong in all areas of English and American literature. Partly because of the influence of the Iowa Writers' Workshop, University Libraries has particular strengths in 20th-century fiction and poetry, including manuscript collections of 20th-century authors.
