

Pharmacy, MS

Learning Outcomes

Graduates will exhibit the ability to:

- demonstrate both subject matter expertise and the ability to critically evaluate the current state of knowledge in that area of expertise;
- understand the fundamental concepts and applications of current methodology and techniques for the conduct and evaluation of research in their area of expertise;
- demonstrate the ability to conduct research under the direction of a faculty member and interact successfully with other members of a research team;
- effectively communicate research findings in both written and oral formats;
- know and apply the highest ethical standards in research and in communication of the results of that research; and
- be prepared for career options in academia, industry, government, or other relevant fields.