Agricultural Safety and Health

Head, Department of Occupational and Environmental Health

- Nathan Fethke

Director

- Diane Rohlman (Occupational and Environmental Health)

Graduate certificate: agricultural safety and health

Website: https://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/certificate-ash/

The certificate program in agricultural safety and health trains students to detect safety and illness hazards, and treat and prevent farm-related illnesses and injuries. The program is available for students in related health science, environmental science, or occupational health and safety programs who want to supplement other training with agricultural health information.

The certificate may enhance employment opportunities in health care delivery, government, and the private sector.

The Certificate in Agricultural Safety and Health is administered by the Department of Occupational and Environmental Health. The Graduate College grants the certificate.

Programs

Graduate Program of Study

Certificate

- Certificate in Agricultural Safety and Health