Obstetrics and Gynecology

Interim Chair
- Brad VanVoorhis

Faculty: https://medicine.uiowa.edu/obgyn/profile/?appointment=PRIMARY&category=&query=&page=1&size=10
Website: https://medicine.uiowa.edu/obgyn/

Faculty in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology contribute to a wide spectrum of educational programs. A six-week core clerkship is taken by all Carver College of Medicine medical students. Subinternships are offered in high risk obstetrics (maternal fetal medicine) and gynecologic oncology. Advanced electives are offered in reproductive endocrinology and infertility, family planning, night float, and urogynecology. Approximately 12 physician assistant (PA) students also complete a one month rotation within the department as part of their training.

There are five Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME) accredited fellowship programs—female pelvic medicine and reconstructive surgery (urogynecology), gynecologic oncology, maternal fetal medicine (high risk obstetrics), combined maternal fetal medicine/clinical genetics, and reproductive endocrinology and infertility.