The Department of Oral Pathology, Radiology, and Medicine educates predoctoral and graduate students. The department has diverse curricular responsibilities and faculty members with widely varied disciplinary expertise.

DDS Student Training

The department teaches dental students about diseases that manifest in and around the oral and maxillofacial region. Students learn about the clinical, radiographic, laboratory, histopathologic, and therapeutic management of these diseases and about their etiology and natural history. They also study the identification of systemic diseases and the oral implications through the physical evaluation of patients.
