Immunology, PhD

Financial Support

Tuition and fees are paid for, and students receive a competitive stipend as well as health and dental benefits. Continued support beyond the first year is guaranteed, provided that progress toward degree completion of requirements is satisfactory. Sources of support include departmental funds, training and research grants, and individual fellowships. Visit Funding on the Interdisciplinary Graduate Program in Immunology website for information on financial support.