

Interdisciplinary Studies

Graduate degrees: MA in interdisciplinary studies; MFA in interdisciplinary studies; MS in interdisciplinary studies; PhD in interdisciplinary studies

The interdisciplinary studies graduate program serves students seeking a more diversified and comprehensive advanced study program than typically allowed for those specializing in a single discipline. Interested students must already be admitted to an existing graduate program prior to seeking approval for an interdisciplinary studies program.

The interdisciplinary studies program allows students to tailor their educational interests, research, and scholarship. With the permission of the student's advisory committee and of the graduate college, students may complete additional graduate certificates and degrees.
