

Anthropology, BA

Requirements

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in anthropology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. Students must maintain a grade-point average of at least 2.00 in all courses for the major and in all UI courses for the major.

Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences GE CLAS Core. Anthropology courses that fulfill GE CLAS Core requirements are located under "Anthropology GE CLAS Core Courses" in the Department of Anthropology section of the catalog.

Students may count up to 56 s.h. of Department of Anthropology coursework (prefix ANTH) toward credit required for the Bachelor of Arts degree.

The BA is designed to offer a comprehensive overview of anthropology's main subfields and the broadest possible cross-cultural background.

Students may choose to complete one of two specialized tracks: archaeology or medical anthropology. See "Optional Undergraduate Tracks" below.

Undergraduates majoring in anthropology, including transfer students, must earn a minimum of 15 s.h. for the major at the University of Iowa. Students may apply credit earned at approved field schools offered by other institutions toward the major, with Department of Anthropology approval.

Students who declare anthropology as their major when they are admitted to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences are advised at the Academic Advising Center until they have earned 30 s.h. Students who have earned more than 30 s.h. are advised by the departmental undergraduate advisor.

The BA with a major in anthropology requires the following coursework.

Practicum and Methods Training

3 s.h. from these:

ANTH:2208	Archaeological Methods	3
ANTH:2290	Practicum in Archaeology	arr.
ANTH:2390	Laboratory Methods in Biological Anthropology	arr.
ANTH:3117	Using Ethnographic Methods	3
ANTH:3207	Animal Bones in Archaeology	3
ANTH:3240	Cultural Resources Management Archaeology: Practice and Practicalities	3
ANTH:3255	Introduction to Archaeological Ceramics	3
ANTH:3295	Field Research in Archaeology	arr.
ANTH:3305	Human Osteology	3
ANTH:4080	Anthropology Internship	arr.
ANTH:4315	Human Evolutionary Anatomy	3

Advanced Coursework

Students must complete two additional anthropology courses (6 s.h., prefix ANTH) numbered 3000 or above.

Anthropology offers many options for advanced coursework, including courses dealing with environment and culture, expressive culture (art, verbal arts, literature, music, and dance), gender and sexuality, human evolution, human osteology, human prehistory, identity, medical anthropology, molecular genetics, psychological anthropology, and urban anthropology. Department faculty members offer courses that focus on Europe, South Asia, and Native North America.

Additional Coursework

Students are strongly encouraged to take courses and participate in archaeological field and laboratory research, biological anthropology laboratory research, ethnographic research methods in sociocultural anthropology, and multimedia research in linguistic anthropology.

Optional Undergraduate Tracks

Students have the option of adding a particular focus to their study plan by completing a specialized track. They may choose one of two options: archaeology [p. 2] or medical anthropology [p. 2].

The optional tracks reflect broad issues bridging subfields in and outside of anthropology. Completion of a track indicates the acquisition of considerable expertise and is noted on a student's transcript.

The optional tracks each require 15 s.h. (typically five courses). By selecting courses carefully, students majoring in anthropology can complete a specialization track without adding to the semester hours required for graduation.

Archaeology

In North America and throughout much of the rest of the world, modern land use continually threatens evidence of past land use. Most archaeological excavations are conducted as cultural resource management (CRM), so it is essential that all researchers who work with archaeological data and individuals committed to site preservation have a basic understanding of CRM. Students who choose this emphasis learn about the field and about how to address related ethical issues as well as technical and theoretical challenges.

The archaeology track requires a fundamental overview course, two area electives, a technical/practical elective, and a field school course.

Medical Anthropology Track

Human experiences of sickness and suffering are universal yet profoundly shaped by cultural and historical contexts. Medical anthropology explores cultural and biological diversity in sickness, health, and healing through approaches that include examining individual experiences of disrupted well-being, considering how biological and cultural factors interact to promote health or produce sickness, analyzing political/economic causes of health inequalities, and applying research to improve health research and services in an increasingly global world. Coursework in medical anthropology helps students prepare for a range of health professions and social services careers and for work in diverse settings that increasingly include nongovernmental organizations devoted to improving health. Future health professionals are increasingly called upon to understand how sociocultural and biological factors intersect to produce experiences of health, sickness, and healing.

The medical anthropology track requires an introductory course plus four electives that focus on health-related topics. Elective options include courses numbered 2000-3999 that apply medical anthropology to specific topics, as well as a course numbered above 4000 that helps students to engage with more complex topics in this field.

Teacher Licensure

Students interested in teaching in elementary and/or secondary schools should seek admission to the Teacher Education Program (TEP) in the College of Education.

To qualify for licensure in secondary teaching, students in the TEP complete a degree in education as well as a related College of Liberal Arts and Sciences degree. See Apply on the College of Education website for details on requirements and deadlines for applying to the College of Education and about TEP choices of majors leading to licensure.
