

Speech and Hearing Science, PhD

Career Advancement

The PhD program provides excellent preparation for careers in academia, industry, and research. There continues to be a strong demand for graduates with doctoral-level training in speech and hearing sciences. Graduates routinely advance to postdoctoral research positions or are hired as university faculty members, and many graduates have achieved high-level administrative and research positions in the field.