Applied Physics, B.S.

Learning Outcomes
Applied physics majors will be able to:

• demonstrate competency in applying the basic laws of physics in a focused area of physics and a related applied field;

• solve complex, real-world problems using the principles of physics; and

• demonstrate competency in using theoretical tools, basic instrumentation, and in analyzing the data obtained.